2. INTERROGATORY

Explain and list in detail each and every piece of hardware and software Defendant is required to have in order to illegally receive DIRECTV'S satellite programming.

OBJECTION: DIRECTV objects to this request in that it is vague and ambiguous, overly broad, and not limited to information reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. For purposes of the responses to these Interrogatories, a "Pirate Access Device" is a device designed to permit viewing of DIRECTV's television programming without authorization by, or payment to, DIRECTV, and include, without limitation, illegally modified DIRECTV Access Cards, programmers, bootloaders, unloopers, emulators and software scripts. Further, when used in these responses, unless otherwise specified, the term "Access Card" shall refer to cards utilized in conjunction with DIRECTV satellite receivers for purposes of obtaining DIRECTV programming or services, whether such Access Card is validly activated, not activated or illegitimately programmed.

RESPONSE: Subject to and without waiving this objection, DIRECTV responds as follows: There are various ways to obtain satellite transmissions without authorization. At a minimum, an individual needs a fixed outdoor satellite dish, a satellite receiver designed to receive DIRECTV's satellite signals, cabling, and a DIRECTV access card. Additionally, to view the satellite transmissions, an individual will typically use a monitor connected to the receiver. Each of these items are typically purchased or obtained from entities other than DIRECTV. Unauthorized viewing of DIRECTV's satellite signals can be accomplished using various types of pirate hardware and software used to decode DIRECTV's satellite signals for use without authorization.

3. INTERROGATORY

Describe and explain in detail the nature, function and purpose of each device as set forth in paragraph 19 of the complaint.
